

ABSTRACT

The invention provides methods and kits for determining the presence of polynucleotides in samples. According to certain embodiments, the invention provides methods for determining the presence of target polynucleotides by amplifying the target polynucleotides in the sample, detecting amplification products, and determining the sequence of the amplification products.